

A Look Inside Inglese™

Started in 1977 as a better way to tune Weber carburetors for his Cobra, Jim Inglese founded Inglese™ as a way to make visually stunning induction systems run as well as they looked. His goal was to pre-jet and tune the carburetors prior to installation so that they would work perfectly – right out of the box. After working on his own vehicles, Inglese began building Weber carb set-ups for friends and continued to expand for almost 30 years into the Inglese™ we now know. In 2007, Inglese™ became part of the COMP Performance Group™ family, who broke tradition by introducing Inglese™ Electronic Fuel Injection Systems, as well as continuing to offer the Weber carburetor systems that it originally built its business on. So whether you're running a carbureted system or fuel injection, Inglese™ has something for you. Give us a call or check us out on the web!

Online Resources

The Inglese™ website, www.inglese.com, offers the quickest way to find out more about these stunning induction systems. Of great help is the FAQ section that includes the most frequently asked questions about Inglese™ products. The easy-to-follow column headings make it simple to shop online for just the right induction system, fuel system, linkage kits or other system options. For more information, a PDF catalog can be downloaded quickly for review or printout. All of the important website basics are there, including contact information, detailed warranty guidelines and the ability to sign up for email updates.
